BARCELONA LIVE BURNING

With Deadly Aim They Shot the Spaniards from Windows of Churches.

Special to the Eagle.

Barcelona, France, July 21.—All reports received here from Spain confirm the terrible fury of the war throughout Catalonia.

At Barcelona they fought behind the barricades with the men, urging them to fight to the death. Everywhere they resisted the search, a by-gone for recruits for the reserves, barring the doors of their houses and firing at the soldiers from windows.

Not only at Barcelona, but throughout the province, church property was the special object of popular fury. Horrible stories are recounted of the merciless fashion in which the churches and convents were sacked and burned. Incidents of the institutions were driven into the field to the cries of "Down with the church!"

At Granollers, 16 miles from Barcelona, two convents were burned.

At Amer the Carmelite convent was looted and burned, and the sisters narrowly escaped with their lives.

ALLEN WILCOX PROMOTED.

Appointed Secretary of the A. and M. College to Succeed S. E. Andrews.

College Station, Texas, July 20.—

Allen B. Wilcox has been named secretary of the A. and M. College to succeed S. E. Andrews, resigned.

Mr. Andrews recently resigned his position to go to the A. and M. College of Oklahoma as secretary and treasurer. Since his resignation there has been quite a number of very capable men considered for the position, but it has been given as a promotion to Mr. Wilcox. He has been for more than a year in the office of Mr. J. M. Carson Jr., the treasurer of the college, where he has proved most efficient and careful, and following out the policy of the college to reward faithful service by advancement, Mr. Wilcox has been transferred to the Secretary's office. His home is in Bryan.

James Davis Garner has been elected to fill the last vacancy in the department of mathematics of the A. and M. College of Texas. Mr. Garner got his A. B. degree at Mercer University of Georgia in 1888; LL. B. at University of Alabama in 1891; A. M. at University of Chicago in 1900. From 1888 to 1890 he was principal of the Tennessee, Ga. high school; from 1890 to 1891 he was law student at the University of Alabama; from 1892 to 1893 was an attorney at Anniston, Ala. From 1904 to 1908 he was superintendent of the schools at Kaufman, Texas; from 1898 to 1900 he was a graduate student at the University of Chicago; in the department of mathematics and political science; from 1900 to 1907 he was superintendent of the city schools in Georgia and in 1907 he became professor of mathematics and political science at Bethel college at Russellville, Ky.

Sorry He Spoke.

He was very deferential, but he was a deacon in the church, and he felt that he had a right to criticize. "I hope you'll pardon me," he said, "if I suggest that your sermon was—ah—"

"Too pretty, I suppose," suggested the minister.

"Oh, no, not that, but too long." "But you mustn't blame me for that," returned the minister pleasantly. "If you knew a little more I wouldn't have to tell you so much."

Shaving.

When asked whether Napoleon shaved himself Talleyrand replied: "Yes. One born to be a king has some one to shave him, but they who acquire kingdoms shave themselves." Dionysius, the Great of Syracuse, not daring to commit himself to a barber's hands, is said to have shaved his own head with a scimitar without shelling.

RIGHT WHEELS ARE GAIN IN SILENCE

Republican Stationers Get an Excellent Rating in Silence.

Bothwell, Tenn., July 21.—To demand that work on a school house being built near the Kentucky line be stopped and that the members of the county school board resign, is the new rule assumed by "right wheels" in this section. A letter to a local storekeeper yesterday requested that an accompanying notice, with the initials of the clan, matches and loaded cartridge, be posted demanding the cessation of work on the school house and the resignation.

Flight of the Spirit.

A case recorded by Pinchbeck would seem to support the theory that during periods of protracted immobility the spirit of the sleeper, freed from the body, wanders away to realms and scenes not conceivable by the ordinary senses. A man named Thompson, he tells us, fell from a great height and was picked up to all appearances dead. There were no external wounds about him, but the physicians were astounded by the fact of the decaying. Arrangements were made for his burial, but on the third day after his fall he revived, much to the consternation of his friends. In a short time it became quite evident that the whole tenor of the man's life had changed. Previously his character was that of a reprobate and a vicious man, but after his immobility he ever followed after virtue. On being asked the reason of the change, Thompson related that during his long sleep his spirit had been liberated from his body and had wandered away to a strange land, where it had joined a whole company of other spirits. His past life was disclosed to him in all its hideousness, and the glorious capabilities which were before him were revealed in such a manner as to make him ambitious of attaining them.

The Hearts of Sam Houston.

In the "Memoirs of a Senate Page" Christian F. Eckloff recalls the years just prior to the outbreak of the civil war, when Sumner, Wade, Douglas, Hamlin, Houston, John P. Hale, Breckinridge, Thomas and Jefferson Davis were debating the great questions upon which the north and south were at variance. They were an imposing body of men, mostly clad in black broadcloth and wearing high silk hats. But there was one senator who refused to be dignified—Senator Houston of Texas. "Day after day," says Mr. Eckloff, "during spare moments he sat there in his seat carving hearts out of soft pine wood. They were pieces about the size of the hand. When he had completed one of these works of art he would summon a page and, pointing toward some fair spectator in the gallery, would say: 'Give this to that lady up there with General Sam Houston's compliments.'"

Mr. Eckloff remembers Houston as one of the gentlest and kindest of men.

Book and Buskin.

In the early ages theatrical performers displayed their faces with white linen or a rude pigment. Aeschylus, the famous tragic poet, introduced masks, which were of various kinds, expressing every age, country, condition and complexion. All were constructed with the greatest nicety and precision. The dresses were also adapted to the characters assumed by the actors. What was known as the buskin was a hunting boot. These were by tragedians had soles three inches thick, composed of layers of cork, and were laced up in front as high as the calf. Bards were also worn, and many of these had thick cork soles. The colors of the foot coverings were various, red being the favorite hue for warriors and purple for other characters. Slaves were a low shoe bearing the name of sock, which was also the ordinary footwear of comedians. Upon this circumstance arose the well known phrase of "sock and buskin," so generally associated with the drama.

Animals With Pockets.

Did you ever think what a curious thing it is that some animals have pockets—great, roomy, fur lined vast pockets, big enough to carry a family of little ones about in? Many of the animals native to Australia and Tasmania have these convenient pockets, and so has the possum, a common animal in our southern states. The kangaroo is the largest of this species. Full grown kangaroos go about with a jump, and so when going on a long journey or running from hunters think what a comfort it must be to Mother Kangaroo to know that her babies are snug and safe in her pockets!
